

RANDOLPH

Pardoned Man, Going Home to Die, Expires in Station.

When the train from the south arrived here on Saturday, a man was taken off who was in a dying condition, and he only breathed a short time after being taken from the train. He was in charge of an officer, Mr. Bugbee of Windsor, and the man proved to be one William Jones, who had been in the prison on a sentence for "breaking and entering" and had served a part of his sentence of three years, when he became seriously ill and for the last six months had been in the Claremont, N. H., hospital for treatment. It was understood that he was pardoned, and he was anxious to get to his home in Underhill and the officer started with him and was going as far as Essex Junction, but the man grew alarmingly ill, and was taken off here to breathe his last as soon as he left the train. Not much can be gained in regard to him. It was reported that he expected to meet his wife in Essex, but the parties who were to meet him were not at once communicated with by the officer, and he received the word that "if he had died they did not care for the remains" and instructions came from Windsor to take him there for burial in the state grounds. The body was taken to the undertaking rooms of A. F. Lamb, and this morning was taken by the officer to Windsor for burial. It was thought that the deceased might be from 40 to 45 years of age.

Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Buck, Mrs. C. S. Booth, Mrs. M. W. Campbell, Mrs. Ellen Lattimore, who were in Barre on Friday in attendance upon the Rebekah assembly, returned home on Friday night. Mrs. F. A. Salisbury, another member of Fern Rebekah lodge, waited over and returned on Friday morning.

A meeting of Col. Israel Converse chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was held at the home of Mrs. Grace Conant, Randolph Center, on Saturday afternoon, the 19th. Quite a delegation from this place were present, and the meeting was very helpful and enjoyable. The usual ritual service was observed, after which the roll call was responded to by the members by "Things I use every day, which my grandmother never dreamed of." A letter was read by the regent, Mrs. Lemuel Richmond, from the state regent, asking that she appoint a chairman of the war relief service committee, which she did by placing Mrs. H. E. Hinkley in that position. An invitation from Mrs. G. A. Laird of Royallton to hold the June meeting with her at her home, was accepted. The flag, which this chapter presented to the Wall alumni field, was reported, and the price given by the committee. Following the business, Miss Winnifred Richmond gave a very interesting paper on "Thomas A. Edison, his life and work," which was followed by a reading by Mrs. A. C. Wells, "In the Twilight." The program was concluded with refreshments and a social hour.

Walter Hinkley, who has enlisted in the navy, was home with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Hinkley, over Sunday.

Rev. W. T. Sparhawk left Saturday for Claremont, N. H., to preach in the Congregational church on Sunday.

The death of Mrs. Homer Terrien occurred at the sanatorium on Friday night, and her remains were taken to her home on the Center road on Saturday. The funeral was held from the Catholic church on Monday morning.

The sixth annual prize speaking contest occurred at the Chandler Music hall on Friday evening, with a fair attendance, and the judges were Prin. Joseph E. Godfrey, Randolph Center junior high school, Miss Katherine Merrill, South Royalton high school, and Ralph D. Twitchell, sub-master Hartford high school. The following program was given: Music by the orchestra; "The Ransom of Mack," Dean Harry Allen; "The Little Rebel," Iris Bell Flint; "The Battle of Waterloo," Wilmer Webster Angell; music by orchestra; "Through Fire and Water," Marian Jennie Brown; "Father and Son" (the Deemster), Howard Gordon Spalding; "The Painter of Seville," Ruth Mae Thayer; music; (A) "On the Wire," (B) "The Fool," Dwight Luther Granger; "The Soul of the Violin," Annie Gilbert Bell; music. The first prize for the boys was given to Howard Gordon Spalding, and the second to Dean Harry Allen; the first prize to girls to Annie Gilbert Bell, and the second to Iris Bell Flint. The exercises of the class invited all to DuBois & Gay's hall, where there was dancing till 2. The whole entertainment was very good and deserving of much credit.

Joseph Brown, who had been out of health for several months and for the last two months very ill, died on Sunday in the forenoon. Mrs. James Mullaly, his only daughter, from Montpelier, arrived here on Saturday and was present at his death. The arrangements are not yet completed, but it is expected that the funeral will be held on Tuesday.

Mrs. H. P. Sanford, who has been several months with her daughter, Mrs. John Abbott in Winchester, Mass., returned home Friday and has opened her home for the season.

ORANGE.

There will be an auction and social dance at the town hall Tuesday night, proceeds to go toward prize fund for children's gardens. Ladies please bring cake.

FOR EXCESSIVE URIC ACID TRY THE WILLIAMS TREATMENT 50 Cent Bottle (32 Doses) FREE

Just because you start the day worried and tired, stiff legs and arms and muscles, an aching head, burning and itching down the back—worn out before the day begins, do not think you have to stay in that condition. Be strong, well and vigorous, with no more pains from stiff joints, sore muscles, rheumatic aches, burning back or bladder trouble. If you suffer from bladder weakness, with burning, scalding pains, or if you are in and out of bed half a dozen times a night, you will appreciate the new, comfort and strength this treatment gives. To prove the Williams Treatment conquers kidney and bladder diseases, rheumatism and all other ailments when due to excessive uric acid, no matter how chronic or stubborn, if you have never tried The Williams Treatment, we will give you one 50c bottle (32 doses) free if you will cut out this notice and send it with your name and address, and 10c to help defray distribution expenses. To The Dr. D. A. Williams Company, Dept. 2940, Post Office Building, East Haverhill, Mass. Send at once and you will receive by parcel post a regular 50c bottle, without charge and without incurring any obligation. Only one bottle in the name address—family—Adv.

EAST HARDWICK

Emory Clifford from Ryegate is home for a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Goodrich of Hardwick have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Battles.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hines of Hardwick spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Norcross.

Mrs. Susan Keith is very ill at the home of C. S. Montgomery; a trained nurse is caring for her.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hartson of St. Johnsbury are at Freeman Waterman's. Mrs. Della Babcock is spending a few days at the home of Huldah Gray.

William Ransom, Rev. Mr. Dutton and Mrs. Edna Hovey are ill with cold and bronchitis.

Mrs. Elvira Stevens, who has been confined to her bed most of the time for two weeks, is improving slowly. She is 93 years old and unusually smart for one of that age.

Miss Charlotte A. Wilson spent Saturday with her mother at Jerry Currier's in Hardwick.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Jennings are rejoicing over the birth of a son, born May 11.

Mrs. Kate Eastman has gone to her home in Cabot for a few weeks, and Mrs. Gertrude Philbrick is caring for Mrs. Caroline Underwood during her absence.

Miss Blanche Wilson is working for Mrs. Martin Sweet.

Leon Stuart went to Burlington Wednesday, where he entered the Mary Fletcher hospital for treatment. Mr. Stuart was operated on for appendicitis, and is doing well.

The W. C. T. U. convention meets at the Baptist church May 22 and 23. It is hoped that everyone will make an effort to attend some of these meetings, if not all three.

TOPSHAM

Mr. O. P. Dickey, Who Died at Age of 65 Years, Had Long Been Ill.

On Monday evening, May 14, after an illness of four weeks, Mrs. O. P. Dickey entered into eternal rest at the age of 65 years. She was a great sufferer, and though kind and loving hands ministered to her every want and with the best medical skill obtainable, it was impossible to conquer the disease which had fastened itself so firmly upon her. The funeral was held from the house on Thursday at 1 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Smith officiating. Burial was in the village cemetery. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. Sympathy is extended to the husband, who is left to walk the pathway of life alone, but may be with trusting heart look up and feel that "God doeth all things well."

Rev. J. C. Wright received a painful injury to the fingers of his right hand on Wednesday, while assisting in sawing wood at Frank Smith's. He was obliged to go to Groton at a late hour to have the hand dressed.

Several from here attended the auction at the Thomas Smith place last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hood of East Corinth were at A. D. Hood's Sunday.

Will Fox has sold his Ford car to James Eastman.

Mrs. Leonard Simpson of East Corinth is ill at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Hood.

Miss Ruth McKay was home from Montpelier seminary over Sunday.

The Ernest Bowen property has been sold to Thomas Robitton of Windsor by the Strout Real Estate agent, W. O. Johnson.

Miss Iveline McKay of West Topsham spent Sunday here with friends.

David White has seemed more comfortable for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Powers were in Bradford over Wednesday.

Charles Evans was home from his work at Newbury over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Eastman motored to Montpelier last Saturday with Edwin Miller as chauffeur.

WATERBURY

A committee of representative men called on Governor Graham at the State House Thursday to urge the appointment of Attorney Charles B. Adams as state's attorney in the place of Fred E. Gleason, resigned. Attorney Adams was born in Randolph, graduated from the Randolph Normal school and Montpelier seminary; studied law in the University of Maine and was admitted to the Maine bar in 1912. In 1914 he was admitted to the Vermont bar and for three years past has been a practicing attorney in Waterbury. Mr. Adams stands high both in his legal ability and in everything good in community work. His appointment will be pleasing to the people of the vicinity.

The funeral of Winfield Scott Durett was held at his late home in South Duxbury Thursday afternoon, Rev. Arthur Abbott of Moretown officiating. The bearers were four sons of the deceased, C. G. Durett of Burlington, W. S. Durett of Duxbury, G. H. Durett and M. R. Durett of Barre. The floral offerings were beautiful and burial was in the village cemetery. Beside the children who were present, the brother of the deceased, Lyman Durett, came from Lyon Mountain, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Durett, jr., of Duxbury are the parents of a son born Friday afternoon.

WAITSFIELD

Miss Frances Hartshorn spent the week end at her home in Lincoln.

John C. Kingsbury is spending a few days in Hemmingford, Canada.

The checker tournament held a banquet in the Waitsfield house Monday evening, 13 being present.

Mrs. Emma Marble, while keeping house at G. W. Wallis' this week, was taken critically ill with stomach trouble.

Everett Wallis was home from Goddard over Sunday.

W. W. McAllister has returned from Henton hospital.

The Nellie Gill Players presented "Paid in Full" in L. O. O. F. hall Thursday night, but the audience was small.

The high school play, "At Martin's Country Store," will be given Friday, June 1.

Verne L. Perkins of Waterbury was at J. A. Smith's Wednesday.

Repairs on the Congregational church are proceeding well and it has been decided to redecorate both vestry and parlor, as well as the auditorium.

Miss Abbie Miner, while confined to her bed by illness, seems to be improving.

BETHEL

Boy Killed by Train Recently Lived in Barre.

The youth killed by the northbound morning local on the Central Vermont railway last Saturday, as told in this paper that day, was Marino Orticari, aged 14 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orticari, who came from Barre to live in a house on Bridge street. For several years the family lived near the Bethel quarries, going to Barre a year ago. The boy was assisting for a few days at the Demers bakery and was on his way to work when struck by the train. John S. Gay and Eddie Croft were eye-witnesses of the tragedy. No doubt he became confused when he heard the train coming, and his lack of familiarity with the location added to the peril. The location was about 100 yards below the cattle chutes. The body was viewed promptly by Dr. O. V. Greene, who found live extent, owing to a blow on the back of the head, crushing the skull. There was a compound fracture of one leg. The face was marred by gravel into which the impact of the engine plunged him headfirst. The boy was a promising young fellow of fine appearance, tall for his age and well spoken of by those who knew him. The funeral was held yesterday at A. Lee Cady's undertaking rooms, with interment at Fairview cemetery.

Mrs. Marcus L. Hilliard died of pneumonia at her home in this village last Friday evening, after an illness of nine days, beginning with bronchitis. The funeral was held yesterday at 12:30 o'clock, Rev. J. Wesley Miller officiating, and the remains were carried to Claremont, N. H., her girlhood home, for interment. The bearers were Mark O. Chamberlin, Charles J. Gratton, Sabin Jordan and W. W. Marshall. The deceased was born March 17, 1851, in Claremont and was married to Mr. Hilliard 30 years ago. They lived about ten years each in Massachusetts, Maine and Vermont, nearly all of their Vermont residence being here. Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Lura, a graduate of Whitcomb high school, now Mrs. W. R. Tenney of Manchester, N. H., who was with her the last few days of her life, and a brother, George Burrell of Claremont.

Mrs. H. H. Dinsmore goes to-day to Hanover, N. H., accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Edmund. She expects to be operated on for appendicitis tomorrow. Mrs. Edmunds will remain in Hanover a few days to visit her sister.

Rev. Fred Engel of Gaysville addressed the Young People's Christian league last evening at the Methodist church on "Introduction to New Testament Study."

Walter Welch, reported in Saturday's news despatches as wounded in France, is a former student at Whitcomb high school, where he was in the class of 1914 and first and second years. He had written several letters to friends here during the past year.

E. C. Blaisdell went last week to his farm in Cambridge to co-operate with his brother, Ray Blaisdell, in planting operations for a month. He finds the help problem very serious.

Harold R. Bundy, who was detained by measles, is now with the supply company of the first Vermont regiment at Fort Ethan Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lee were in Hanover, N. H., to-day, where Mrs. Lee's father, Moses Chubbey, was to undergo a serious operation.

Whitcomb high school defeated Hartford high school of White River Junction in a game on the new playground Saturday. The score was 12 to 10. Regan gave the visiting batsmen three singles during the game. Two of these, by O'Brien and White in the seventh inning, with the aid of a sacrifice, yielded two runs, easily the base-running achievement of the game. In this inning only five men faced Regan. Whitcomb's lead inning in the final was the fifth, when the visitors scored six times largely as a result of seven errors, to which Pitcher Ashley added the only other hit of the game on his side of the contest. Before this each side had scored only once, so that at the middle of the fifth, the locals were up against a 7 to 1 score. Their habitual ability to overcome big obstacles asserted itself very soon, and when Ashley had suffered his only serious pounding of the game, in the last half of the inning, they were within one of tying the score, five runners having made the circuit. The remarkable thing is that in this half of the inning the first two men who came to the plate were easy outs and Marshall's single stood an even chance of counting nothing. Instead it was the beginning of a rally which seldom has been excelled for dash and results. Davis was hit, Wilson singled, Jebb got his base on an error at third, and Regan and Newton singled, all of those named but Newton scoring before the third man was out. This was Ashley's only bad inning, but in the seventh he succeeded by Manager Renahan, who had an off day at third base and then had an off day in the box, for if Ashley was weak, Renahan was weaker, the locals finding him with perfect ease in both innings that he pitched. The game was a repetition of the former games on the new grounds, including Regan's good pitching, strong hitting and weak fielding by the locals, and a bad scare for them in the first half of the game, with a fine recovery later. Marshall was the big hitter and got his base each of the five times he walked to the plate, on a double, two singles, four bad balls and an error at short. Jebb's good batting in former games won for him a high place in the batting order, and although he was credited with no hits, he got his base three times consecutively on errors at third base, and really handled the stick with much facility. He is credited with two runs. The summary:

Whitcomb High School, 6 0 1 2 0 5 1 —12
Hartford High School, 1 0 0 0 0 2 0 1 —10
Two-base hit—Marshall. Sacrifice hits—Regan, 2. Bristles—Ashley, Renahan. Double play—O'Brien to Carroll. Hit by pitched ball—O'Brien. Davis struck out—By Regan 9. By Ashley 2. First base—by Regan 9. By Ashley 2. By Renahan.

CHELSEA WEST HILL NOTES.

There will be a special meeting of the West Hill Farmers' club on Thursday evening, May 24, at which time Mr. Leggett of Burlington will speak on the subject of "Poultry."

Mr. Loveland will also be present. This is a subject in which all are interested, and it is hoped that a large number will avail themselves of the opportunity to be present.

CASTORIA For Infants and Children In Use For Over 30 Years.

Always bears the Signature of J. C. Watson

There will be a special meeting of the West Hill Farmers' club on Thursday evening, May 24, at which time Mr. Leggett of Burlington will speak on the subject of "Poultry."

Mr. Loveland will also be present. This is a subject in which all are interested, and it is hoped that a large number will avail themselves of the opportunity to be present.

There will be a special meeting of the West Hill Farmers' club on Thursday evening, May 24, at which time Mr. Leggett of Burlington will speak on the subject of "Poultry."

Mr. Loveland will also be present. This is a subject in which all are interested, and it is hoped that a large number will avail themselves of the opportunity to be present.

There will be a special meeting of the West Hill Farmers' club on Thursday evening, May 24, at which time Mr. Leggett of Burlington will speak on the subject of "Poultry."

Mr. Loveland will also be present. This is a subject in which all are interested, and it is hoped that a large number will avail themselves of the opportunity to be present.

There will be a special meeting of the West Hill Farmers' club on Thursday evening, May 24, at which time Mr. Leggett of Burlington will speak on the subject of "Poultry."

Mr. Loveland will also be present. This is a subject in which all are interested, and it is hoped that a large number will avail themselves of the opportunity to be present.

There will be a special meeting of the West Hill Farmers' club on Thursday evening, May 24, at which time Mr. Leggett of Burlington will speak on the subject of "Poultry."

Mr. Loveland will also be present. This is a subject in which all are interested, and it is hoped that a large number will avail themselves of the opportunity to be present.

There will be a special meeting of the West Hill Farmers' club on Thursday evening, May 24, at which time Mr. Leggett of Burlington will speak on the subject of "Poultry."

Mr. Loveland will also be present. This is a subject in which all are interested, and it is hoped that a large number will avail themselves of the opportunity to be present.

There will be a special meeting of the West Hill Farmers' club on Thursday evening, May 24, at which time Mr. Leggett of Burlington will speak on the subject of "Poultry."

Mr. Loveland will also be present. This is a subject in which all are interested, and it is hoped that a large number will avail themselves of the opportunity to be present.

Don't wait for time to heal your skin —

"Oh it will get well anyhow!" you say? Perhaps it will, and perhaps it won't. Maybe it will get worse instead. And think of the discomfort and embarrassment it causes you even now.

Isn't it better to get rid of the trouble by using Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap? Doctors have prescribed the Resinol treatment for over 20 years, so you need not hesitate to use it. Resinol usually stops itching instantly. All druggists sell Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. Use Resinol Soap for your hair, too.

Resinol for that skin trouble

EAST CALAIS

Promising Branch of Red Cross Organized in Calais.

A Calais branch of the American Red Cross has been organized in Calais with Mrs. Guy Bancroft of East Calais as president. The charter members thus far enrolled are Col. H. S. Foster, U. S. A., retired, Mrs. Guy Bancroft, Mrs. D. B. Russell, Mrs. C. E. Dwinell, Mrs. Laura Russ, Mrs. Julia H. Spaulding, Miss Alma D. Leonard, Mrs. Nina Daley, Myrtle Drennan, Ralph B. Dwinell and John R. Bancroft. Mrs. Guy Bancroft has given up a large front room to the Red Cross society for their use as a club room. A committee from the high school will have charge of the decoration and care for the room. Nurse Myrtle G. Drennan has been in Montpelier to take the course in surgical dressing for the society and upon her return she is to form a class in town. Those wishing to enter the class should attend the next meeting, which will be held in the Red Cross club room May 31. All interested in the furthering of the work of the Red Cross are cordially invited to attend. "Junk" day, recently held, proved a success and Mrs. George Saunders and Mrs. Guy Bancroft will continue to receive junk. Old papers, magazines, rags, rubbers and old iron will be thankfully received, as finances are very low. This Red Cross branch is not a ladies' society merely and all patriotic men in town are invited to join.

Mrs. M. F. Wood of Barre, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Guy Bancroft, has returned to her home.

Louise Prevost of Hardwick visited her grandmother, Mrs. R. J. Pearce, over Sunday.

Guy Bancroft was in Barre on business Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Brown visited in Hardwick Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dell Dwinell and Mrs. C. R. Dwinell were in Plainfield and Montpelier Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Lamb and son, Merle, Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. Briggs were in Barre Saturday.

Mrs. George Balentine is entertaining the measles.

Mrs. Nora Smith has returned from a visit with relatives in Barton.

Miss Esther Dwinell is spending the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Dell Dwinell.

Webster Wilbur has recently purchased a new Indian motorcycle.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Foss and son, Jay, and Miss Mildred Foss of Hyde Park are visiting Mrs. Foss' parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Emery.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Butler of Barre were recent visitors in town with relatives.

Alex Robinson of Adamant was a business visitor in town Saturday.

The Nation's Response.

A little more than two months ago, the federal government made an appeal for 1,000,000 gardens in the United States. It is officially estimated that this appeal has turned the attention of more than 30,000,000 people in this country to the task of producing food from gardens. It is a wholesome sign, from a variety of viewpoints. It shows not only that the American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide food for themselves, but also that they are discovering the value of land and how it can be utilized in food production. The threatened food shortage is not likely to be an unmitigated evil. If people who formerly knew little and cared less about gardening come to appreciate the healthful enjoyment of the diversion—to say nothing of the satisfaction and financial profit it affords—and conceive a lasting interest in the production of food from the soil, the present menace of food shortage will not be so serious. The American people are endeavoring to provide